

Welcome to West Suburban Journal E-Edition! Your local print newspaper turned digital just got better.

We have added a new web based PDF viewer that renders pages into slides as regular images instead of Flash or more commonly, Flip pages. This is useful as readers can now view WSJ E-Edition on mobile phones or inside web browsers that don't have the Flash plugin.

Below, in the sample, is a view of the WSJ E-Edition tool bar. The bar, inspired by Adobe Reader, allows readers to paginate between pages, zoom in, zoom out, print pages and search content.

You also will find a new presentation mode in WSJ E-Edition called “Expand” with full screen support that provides the user a toggle side bar that paginates up and down document pages. To exit “Expand” mode and continue browsing the digital paper, simple press “Escape” on your keyboard.

It’s that easy! Tell us about your experience by submitting your comments in the WSJ E-Edition Home Page Feedback section.

Enjoy and Happy Reading,

WSJ E-Edition Team
